Lincoln Life Insurance Co. Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Gentlemen:

In "Time" news magazine of August, 1935, was reported our "find" of the "most unusual collection of drawings in the realm of Americana." Since the appearance of this article the subject has been featured in national magazines and newspapers throughout the United States.

A group of the drawings will be shown at the Whitney Museum of American Art, in New York, in April. At the present time a group of fifty drawings from this collection is being sent on itinerant exhibitions throughout the United States by the American Federation of Arts. The first exhibition opened at the Massachusetts State College, on February 10th. In this collection of 1676 original drawings, there is a series of twelve depicting the life of Abraham Lincoln.

The artist who made this extraordinary collection of works was a contemporary of Abraham Lincoln, and the drawings are authentic. In his diary, which we are in possession of, he speaks of Lincoln quite intimately and describes in detail the arrival of Lincoln in Philadelphia on February 21st, 1861, and his stay until the 22nd. to celebrate the birthday of George Washington, with exercises at the State House, and the raising of the American flag on this occasion.

We feel that this material would be of interest to vou in your collection, or you may be interested in securing the publishing rights on these drawings.

We are enclosing, herewith, a folder which illustrates some fifty miscellaneous drawings from this collection.

We might mention that Mr. Henry Ford, recently purchased for the Edison Institute of Technology, in Dearborn, Michigan, a series of eight of these drawings dericting "The First Auto."

Mr. Louis A. Warren, Lincoln National Life Foundation, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Dear Mr. Warren:

We are sending you, under separate cover, twelve (12) photographs from the original drawings, by Joseph Boggs Beale.

The one requested in your letter of March 5th. is included in this group. We assume you would be interested in the entire set, and are therefore, sending them to you and enclose bill to cover.

The original drawings will be shown at the Whitney Museum of American Art in April, together with other historical drawings from this collection.

If you are interested in securing the original drawings for your institution, the price of the set (twelve in number) would be $2,000.00.

We also, wish to advise that the photographs we are sending are for research purposes only, and all publishing rights are reserved by us. Should you desire to make publication, however, such arrangements can be made by direct application to us. When publication rights are secured, 8 x 10 glossy prints are supplied for perfect reproduction.

We trust the above information is what you desire, and that we may have the pleasure of hearing from you further.

Mr. Arthur W. Colen, Director Modern Galleries 1720 Chestmut Street Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

My dear Mr. Colen:

We regret indeed the delay in replying definitely to your correspondence with reference to the Lincoln portraits in the possession of the Modern Galleries.

Having been out of the office for more than three months it has not been possible to give you any definite reaction with respect to your pictures.

The matter of reproducing these pictures in some trade journal advertising which we do has been taken up with our Advertising Department and we would be glad to have you advise us what you charge for a glossy print and the privilege of reproducing it in one issue of a trade journal magazine.

Of course, every one of these pictures is familiar to us having seen them in print many different times in various books and the copies of the originals which you have sent have such fine details that they would make fairly good reproductions. We shall be pleased to hear from you with reference to the use of these prints.

Yours very truly.

Dear Mr. Warren,

In answer to yours of March25th, please be advised that the rate for the privilege of reproduction of the Beale drawings in trade paper magazine advertising for one time is $15 for each specific drawing.

This rate includes an 3" x10" glassy print for reproduction.

If you decide to use the series there is an allowance of 10% on the total.

We would be obliged to have the titles of the books your refer to in which you said you have seen reproduction of the works in question.

Mr. Arthur F. Hall President Lincoln Mational Life Insurance Co. Fort Wayne Indiana.

Dear Mr. Hall,

Dr. Shewbrooks, (A collector of Americana) of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., suggested my sending to you a group of drawings ."The Life of Lincoln", by Joseph Boggs Beale.

I enclose herewith a catalogue from the Whitney Museum of American Art (New York) where an exhibition of the works of Beale was shown from April 7th to May 7th 1936.

The forward which I especially proared for this exhibition will acquaint you with the artist's background and his close connection with American life.

"Time the weekly newsmagazine featured this "find" in a special article on October 19 1935, saying in part, "This is the most unusual find in the realm of Americana". Since that article appeared, exhabitions have been held in major museums and institutions thru-out the country under the auspices of the American Federation of Arts. (List furnished upon request)

Mr. Henry Ford purchased "The First Auto" group for the Edison Institute of Technology. The Whitney Museum of American Art secured for their permenant collection 14 of Beale's works. The Poe Museum of Antiquities have secured "The aven" group of 12.

I enclose also a few clippings from the press for your interest.

It seems to me that the Lincoln Insurance Co.should have the "Lincoln group and I trust that upon examination of the drawings and the material I send to you , you will be of the same opinion.

Sketches of Abraham Lincoln by an Early American Artist

Drawings by the late Joseph Boggs Beale, early American artist, which were found recently in an attic in Philadelphia, have been acclaimed by critics as the outstanding work of this kind in America. These drawings are now the property of the Modern Galleries of Philadelphia. Included in the Boggs series are drawings of important incidents in American and world history, and illustrations for poems and stories.

SPLITTING RAILS FOR FENCES—Beale was a great admirer of Abraham Lincoln and in his writings he describes minutely Lincoln's arrival in Philadelphia to commemorate the birthday of George Washington in 1861. Philadelphia was Beale's home.

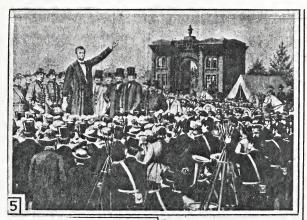

LINCOLN SEES A SLAVE AUCTION—On this occasion, Lincoln voiced his opposition to slavery. Thirty years later, he issued the Emancipation Proclamation which eventually resulted in the freeing of slaves in the United States.

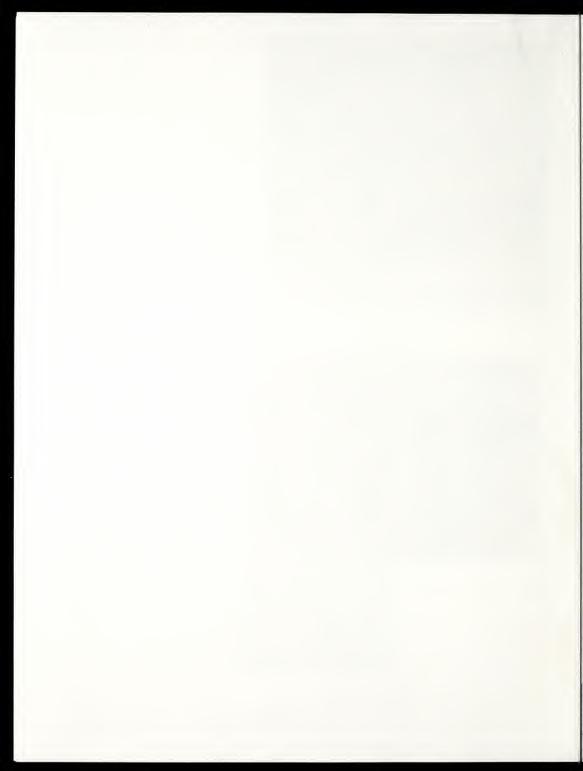

LINCOLN DEBATES WITH DOUGLAS—Beale faithfully reproduces one of the many verbal battles between the two political leaders. Beale was acquainted with many of the important personages of the civil and social life of his time.

DELIVERING the Gettysburg Address-Beale painted many pictures of the war between the states, including his own departure for the war in 1861 and his homecoming in 1863. After the war he became illust trator for Frank Leslie's magazine, Harper Brothers and the old Daily Graphic.

6. DELIVERING THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS. Beale painted many pictures of the Civil War, including his own departure for the war in 1861 and his homecoming in 1863. After the war he became illustrator for Frank Ledie's magarine, Harper Brothers and the old Daily Graphic.

7. ASSASSINATION OF LINCOLN, by John Wilkes Booth, in Ford's Theatre, Washington, D. C., April 14, 1865. Beele faithfully reproduced this historic tragedy from accounts by eye witheses and from description in the newspapers... Many of Beele's paintings were lost in the Chicago fire.

Dear Mr. Persons:

We have a series of original paintings on the Life of Abraham Lincoln by the American Artist, Joseph Boggs Beale, who was a great grandnephew of Betsy Ross.

These paintings are 12 in number depicting episodes in the Life of Lincoln from his birthplace to the assassination. They measure approximately 14" square and are executed in black and white watercolor wash. As you can see from the enclosure, museums consider his work of such merit as to include it in their permanent collections.

We are anxious to place these original paintings in an institution which bears the name of this illustrious man in this his Centennial year celebration. The price is most reasonable.

If the above is of interest, we shall be delighted to hear from you further. $\dot{}$

Your letter of May 14 addressed to Mr. Henry Persons the Vice President of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company has been forwarded to my desk. I note with interest that you have for sale 12 paintings of Abraham Lincoln by Joseph Boggs Beale.

While I feel sure that our Company would not be interested in the purchase of these paintings for advertising purposes I am wondering what you are asking for them. We would like very much to have these 12 paintings for our Museum exhibit. Perhaps you know that we have in the Home Office of our Lincoln National Life Insurance Company the largest collection of historic literature pertaining to Abraham Lincoln. We have quite a number of paintings and works of sculpture. I feel sure that your 12 paintings depicting episodes in the life of Lincoln would greatly enhance our collection.

Dear Mr. Colen:

I have your letter of May 25 offering to sell the Joseph Boggs Beale paintings of Lincoln for $125.00. You state that you have 12 of these for sale which would mean that the total cost would amount to $1,500.

I think your price is reasonable and I am certainly interested in these paintings. However we have under construction a very large annex to our Home Office building. On the First Floor of the annex we have made provisions for the beautiful Museum room in which we expect to have our collection of Lincolniana. The problem that confronts me is to know whether or not we will have an area in which 12 such paintings as you describe could be exhibited. We do not want to purchase these paintings and then have to store them in a vault. I fear I cannot reach any conclusion as to their purchase at this time. I will keep your letter on file and if a need manifests itself for such paintings as the ones by Beals presents itself I will certainly get in touch with you.

While the architect's plans for the new Museum room are available wehasee not gone into details as to what type of decorations we will have on our walls. There is some talk of photo-mirrors. If photo-mirrors are used perhaps we will have no room for exhibiting such works of art as you are offering for sale. If photo-mirrors are not used then perhaps there will be an area where we can exhibit 12 paintings measuring 14" square.

Please do not let our needs influence you in any way. If you can sell these paintings to some other purchaser be sure and do so. I do not want you to feel committed to us in regard to this matter.

Thanking you for bringing this matter to my attention, I remain,

Yours sincerely.

Cordially yours,

Mr. Gerald McMurtry, Director The Lincoln National Life Foundation Fort Wayne, Indiana

Dear Mr. McMurtry:

Thank you for your letter of May 29, 1959.

The twelve Beale original paintings will need only twenty-four lineal feet of wall space if they are hung side by side. This is the way they were hung at the Atwater Kent Museum and The Whitney Museum of Art exhibits.

If hung one above each other (or in two rows) they will require only 12 feet. This should be a small space in any musuem.

I might mention for your interest that I made photo-murals (each picture 8 ft x 8 ft) of The Life of Benjamin Franklin for The Franklin Bank on Franklin Street in Boston. I was told by the President of this institution that school children are brought to the bank to see these murals.

Of course, the original Lincoln pictures in your institution would be better than murals, I should think.

We hope you can come to a decision soon.

LINCOLN LORE

The members of the Beale family passed on to the writer the following bit of Lincoln Lore:

On behest of Beale's employer, a Germantown bibliophile, he was commissioned to illustrate the event at Independence Hall when Lincoln raised the flag in honor of Washington's birthday. When Beale presented himself in the audience to witness this event, he recorded in his drawing the fact that Lincoln took off his coat and rolled up his sleeves to haul up the flag. On seeing this presentation, the Bibliophile suggested that it was rather undignified to see the president in such garb and, therefore, requested Beale to clothe the president with a coat as pictured now in Beale's painting:
"LINCOLN RAISING THE FLAG AT INDEPENDENCE HALL IN HONOR OF WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY."

As an additional bit of information, it might be interesting for you to know that Beale accompanied the bier of Lincoln through the city of Philadelphia as the cortege passed through on its way to Washington.

"... Mr. Henry Ford has again purchased for The Edison Institute at Dearborn, Michigan, another group of the drawings by Joseph Boggs Beale bringing the total number of works by Beale permanently on exhibition to fourteen. Some of Beale's most remarkable drawings are satires with all the flavor of Cruickshank."

New York World Telegram

"... Beale ... had a thorough aesthetic and cultural training and taught at the best schools and counted many important personages as his very best friends ... these circumstances might have had a stultifying effect on him as it did on several other American figures steeped in aesthetics and culture ... La Farge, for example. That it didn't is probably due to Beale's sense of humor, his inquiring mind and his passion for Americana. He had no interest whatsoever in painting pompous allegorical figures in the manner of his contemporaries or romantic landscapes which were weak imitations of the French Barbizon painter's experiments. Instead, he turned his pen to works illustrating Poe, songs of his and other days and events of the American Revolution. Many of them are literal recordings."

JOSEPH BOGGS BEALE 1926

(REPRINT FROM CATALOGUE OF EXHIBITION OF JOSEPH BOGGS BEALE'S PAINTINGS AT THE WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART, NEW YORK 1936)

JOSEPH BOGGS BEALE "arrived" in his way long ago, although he was lost for a while not in a cellar as was erroneously reported, but in an attic. The story of this "find" interesting though it is, was reported elsewhere: therefore, I must leave this part of the discovery or rediscovery, to comment upon his background and work, as culled from his diaries and letters.

"I was born on December 10, 1841, in Eighth Street, below Arch. in Philadelphia, East Side" writes Beale.

His father was Dr. Stephen Thomas Beale, who founded the Pennsylvania Society of Dental Surgeons, the second oldest of its kind in the world. The family is distinguished in the profession of dentistry for eight generations. His great grand-aunt was Betsy Ross, who cut quite a niche for herself in American History in the 1700's.

Beale first studied at the old Central High School, the most influential school in Philadelphia, and became part of the faculty in 1862 as instructor in drawing. Because of his activities in this capacity, and his distinguished appearance, he was labeled "The Professor" and until his death this appellation clung tenaciously to him.

The famous old school numbered among its alumni, Thomas Eakins, William Merritt Chase and Albert Rosenthal, who have since become great names in the world of American Art; all of whom were Beale's friends and associates there, and in the Philadelphia Art Student League. In 1860 Beale entered the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and noted in his diary that he studied with Thomas Eakins.

Detailed descriptions of civic and national events of which he and his family were associated, are dotted through his exacting books.

He describes minutely the arrival of Abraham Lincoln, in Philadelphia. to commemorate the birthday of George Washington in 1861. The celebration which lasted for two days, was carefully observed and recorded by him in every detail.

The diaries show the attitude and character of the man, and substantiate again and again the minute observations so evident in all his works. Detail and exactness predominate his efforts; research to him was never tiring. His interests were diversified. Rowing with Eakins, a fellow member of the Undine Barge Club, torch light parades, or to a local fire. Beale was part of it all. His keen intellect and knowledge of American affairs, and his capacity for retaining stories from the world's great literature, as evidenced from his many works and his ever present meticulous diaries concludes the activity of his life and interests.

He speaks of entire evenings spent in recitation and play acting. Miniature stages, properties and settings were made by him, with costumes supplied by his sisters. His family entered whole-heartedly into these evenings. Important personages of the civic and social life of the day, the Franklins, the Biddles, the Whartons, General Hitchcock, General Cadwalader, etc., were guests at these homey occasions. Beale illustrated these scenes with exactness and dispatch and in this collection of works, of which this group is only a small part, war, bible stories, assassination, plays and humorous incidents were picturized in rapid order. And, with all this work being done, he had time to paint incidents in his own life.

In 1861 he illustrates his departure for the war, and in 1863, his home-coming, depicting the old homestead at 1113 Chestnut Street, in Philadelphia, which was directly opposite the old Union League.

He became illustrator for Frank Leslie's magazine, Harper Bros. and the Daily Graphic, old publications of the 1870's, and in between sandwiched events of his own choosing.

A humorous, yet tragic incident happened to him when he was in Chicago illustrating for Frank Leslie's magazine. This occurred when the fire burst forth in all its fury. Rushing to his studio to rescue two trunks which contained his drawings and clothing, he seized one and threw it into his buggy and with his wife drove out of the city as fast as he could ao.

When the precious trunk was opened, he found to his consternation that he had saved his clothes, but the drawings which he prized most highly, and wished to save above all else were completely destroyed in his boarding house. This was a terrible loss to Beale which he never forgot, but posterity is undoubtedly the greater loser.

It is related (again from letters) that he originally studied to be a physician and that he did a certain amount of dental work under his distinguished father. Through these studies of medicine and dentistry, together with his student days under Thomas Eakins, he became such a master of anatomy that many of his works of the human figure executed in later years were produced without the use of a model.

For a convent in Germantown, he was commissioned to paint sacred pictures, depicting the life of Christ. These works of excellent qualities, would have made a place for him in the world of Fine Art had he confined his attention to that branch of the profession. But instead he elected to record his knowledge and experiences with American subjects and life. His time, however, was not confined to this alone for he illustrated "The Raven" by Poe, the songs of his day and other days, which included "Old Black Joe," "The Star-Spangled Banner," " "Way Down Upon The Swanee River," etc. Plays and stories that were America's and America's only, commanded his interest.

With inside information on events in the American Revolution, not recorded in books but secured from personal contact with descendants of famous figures of the 1700's, and with his knowledge and close association with literary subjects, it was possible for him to produce, with so little effort, the voluminous works accredited to him. His collection of books from which his research was made, was as extensive and varied as a public library.

Beale shows his influence when he speaks (again in his letters) of his admiration for the French illustrator, Doré, which accounts in some measure for his style. There is a similarity in the compositions of these two artists, although Beale shows a distinctive means of rendering.

From the amount of work Beale created, the exacting research and the skillful manner of his execution, it is my opinion that he will be recognized not only as an artist of distinction and master craftsman in his rendering of literary, historical and imaginary subjects but will be known as one of the greatest reporters, pictorially, of scenes of the American life of his time.

FOREWORD . . .

The Society for Visual Education, Inc., is privileged to present this unusual collection of Kodachrome slides, made from hand-painted glass slides of paintings by Joseph Boggs Beale, a collection copyrighted by Modern Enterprises, Philadelphia.

Joseph Boggs Beale' (1841-1926) was an American artist who illustrated works of literature, the Bible, history, songs, etc. This subject matter, in the form of slides, will be of interest to religious groups and educators alike. These slides represent only one section of the Society's extensive library.

This catalog on THE BEALE COLLECTION is one of four Kodachrome catalogs offered by the Society, the others covering: THE ARTS (architecture; paintings-religious, secular, and juvenile; sculpture; landscape gardening; literature; costumes; fashions; dances; design and crafts). THE SOCIAL STUDIES (United States and world history; geography-United States and most foreign countries; world's fairs, sports, patriotic subjects; transportation and communication; sociology). THE SCIENCES (nature study for young science students; botany, zoology, biology, geology, etc., medical and technical subjects; useful arts). Please note that the master Kodachromes listed in these latter three catalogs have been made in natural color from life or from the object itself. If any of these catalogs are of interest to you, ask your dealer, or write directly to the Society for Visual Education. The Society also catalogs more than 2000 35 mm. educational filmstrips in black and white, and many of the paintings listed in this catalog are available in 35 mm. filmstrips. Write for information.

Slides are listed alphabetically under the headings given in the contents page. If there are any slides in which you are interested and which you find are not listed in these catalogs, write your request to the Society; as such requests form the basis for further aquisition of material.

Kodachrome 2" \times 2" slides may be shown on any regular glass beaded or mat-white screen. We recommend the use of a square screen which will show the full image of either vertical or horizontal slides listed in this Library. For best results use a mat-white screen, particularly if the audience is to be seated at an angle greater than 25° from the center of projection. Write for information on Glowhite Screens,

To complete our records and give you better service, please advise us of the make and type of projector you have for showing 2" x 2" siides, and if possible, the number of projectors in use in your school system. The Society will appreciate also being advised of any sources of supply of unusual Kodachrome material of a scientific or technical nature. We shall be pleased to have you communicate with us requrding any slides we do not have available which you need. Every effort will be made to add them to our Library so that we may be adequately equipped to serve your best interests.

THE KING FEATURES SYNDICATES writes: "Should any book publication be made of these drawings or any group of them, we would want to have a copy in our library for reference, and wish to buy newspaper publication rights for one or more of the drawings."

THE NATIONAL BROADCASTING CO. writes: "In regards to the drawings by Beale should be reproduced in a small souvenir book to be offered on some radio programs, this should be taken up with radio advertisers or their agencies. We, however, want whatever material you can give us to submit from, from time to time. Supplementing our letters we have now the latest list of our clients and are sending you a copy.

THE PENN WAX WORKS writes: "We are mighty glad to have the rights to use "Benjamin Franklin in the Candling Shop." It suits our business and gives that authoritative "air" that interests. Enclosed please find our check."

THE BOARD OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., writes: "In accordance with your letter we are sending you the contract for use of pictures secured from you."
